Henry Nouwen, The Way of the Heart

"Without silence and solitude with God, we remain unconvinced of our worth. Instead, we will live each day striving for affirmation, praise, and success. Rather than being set free to love others, we will be endlessly seeking to prove our own value. We will labor to water our gardens by drawing buckets from the world's empty wells. In the end this leads not to love, but to a dry and weary existence."
